Meet the Workers.....

Katie Butler, Architect

Every morning, hardhat and all, you will see Architect Katie Butler, CSHQA, in her role as Project Manager at the State Capitol. She is usually walking around the State Capitol with the masonry man, noting where masonry repairs are needed and recording where repairs have been made. She started this project for CSHQA when the construction phase of the Capitol began; better say Hi to her soon, though, because you will see less of her as the exterior repairs gradually shut down for the winter. Katie tells us that with the inclement and freezing weather the contractors can't walk around on the scaffolding much longer, so they will begin to remove the scaffolding and ladders sometime this weekend. Katie tells us that weather permitting, workers will begin to demolish the west stairs in February with May 1 as the target for completion of the exterior repairs.

One project that Katie says needs to be completed before the scaffolding is removed is to install some large ornamental dutchmen on the cornice second level. That work should start on Wednesday.

One reminder: on December 8 and 9 the workers will demolish the portion of the east steps that need to be replaced, so it might be a good time to avoid weekend work
